LATE NITE ART FOUNDER

Meet Adam Rosendahl

CHIEF EXPERIENCE OFFICER

As a facilitator and experience designer, Adam fuses art, music, and dialogue to breathe more imagination and connection into teams and organizations. For the last 10 years, he has traveled the globe with Late Nite Art, working with 100+ organizations, and transforming the typical business gathering into an unforgettable and connective experience. His arts-based methodology has been adapted internally as a teaching tool inside Stanford University and LinkedIn, impacting the lives of thousands. Today, he works alongside his team of masterful facilitators, using real-time traditional tools to build bridges and unlock creative confidence.

TESTIMONIALS

Our clients love Late Nite Art.

"Late Nite Art recently brought joy, and connection to our globally distributed team as part of our internal Adobe Design Summit. During these unprecedented times, with teammates working from home, it can be a challenge to cultivate a sense of community, but the LNA team managed to create a warm, welcoming virtual space for us."

— Bailey Bramsiepe, Organizer of Adobe Design Summit

"Our global L&D team (including directors and VP's) loved it. The experience was the highlight of our 40-person retreat. The LNA team was professional, prepared, and took care of every detail. I really appreciated how they wove insights about our team into the experience — it felt like they 'got' us. I wouldn't hesitate to use LNA again!"

— Mary Shindler, Senior Program Manager, L&D LinkedIn

"We brought Late Nite Art to our annual training and development conference where we had over 200 attendees. The afternoon was the highlight of everyone's week! From our college interns all the way up to our VP, everyone had nothing but positive things to say. LNA did an amazing job tailoring the experience to best fit our company culture and areas of focus. We would invite them back in a heartbeat!"
